Liberal Policy and Former Minister's Record Appeal to the Electors

QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Replies to Opposition Candidates Brought a Storm of Applause

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta., Nov. 23.—Hon. Frank Oliver has received a royal welcome in the Peace River country at the different Liberal meetings held this week.

Almost the entire population is showing a keen interest in the Liberal party's policy and their respect and admiration for Mr. Oliver, by attending his meetings. Both at Sexsmith and at Beaver Lodge he was received by large audiences, and in spite of the severe cold, weather here, his meetings were packed to the rafters. The first meeting was held at the time the meeting was called, J. Thompson acted as chairman, and on the platform were James McFarlane

Henry Roberts, Rod McKenzie, J. W. Sutherland and other prominent politicians and farmers.

Mr. Oliver spoke for nearly three hours, and was freely applauded. Half an hour was given to representatives of each of the opposition candidates.

These speakers were then replied to by Mr. Oliver. His rebuttal showed him up to still greater advantage, and he was wildly cheered and applauded.

Mr. Oliver dealt mostly with present and future problems. He is in splendid form and more than fulfilled the anticipations of those who expected an able and constructive address.

This north country gave him a good majority last election, and indications are that he will receive a big majority here again on December 6. The voters here know his record and are anxious to secure his election.

RECORD OF TICONDEROGA.

Toronto Globe:—
Mr. Henry Drayton in speaking of the failure of the Government of Canada to collect $800,000 due by the Klondike Company for Federal taxes which have remained unpaid for several years asserts that "the company is in the same situation as any other company that is now, and has been, unable to pay its business profits tax. Many instances, the profits actually earned had been invested in plant extensions or supplies. The rule followed by the Government has been to collect the taxes at the earliest possible moment short of a sheriff's sale." Does this explanation meet the case of the Klondike Company, which has apparently paid the taxes due by it to the Government of Canada for only one year—1919—since the passage of the Business Profits War Tax measure in 1917? Was the company in financial straits when the taxes for 1916 and 1917 became due? That can be answered without reserve to the negative. The Klondike Company was a highly flourishing concern in 1915, when at the latest these taxes should have been collected, and when every patriotic Canadian was being urged to aid the Government to the limit of his financial ability in the winning of the war.

The Montreal Gazette on February 22, 1917, told its readers of the "brilliant financial statement" for 1916 then going forward to the Klondike Company's shareholders. This statement had earned 25 per cent on common. The Gazette assured its readers it had carried forward for 1916 dividends and bonus of 4 1/2 per cent, the great sum of $1,215,000. This surplus, however, said The Gazette, "is subject to the deduction of any amount that may be payable for the year under the Business Profits Tax." The company's statement for these years under the 1916 and 1917 noted that no Government taxation for these years. The statement for 1917 showed that the Klondike Company had a net income of $1,215,000 at the beginning of 1917, and being out partly by the sale of bonds and partly out of earnings while the Klondike Company—while in effect the Klondike Company and Carl Klondike who centralized the executive offices—failed to make provision for the payment of the company's share of the tax required to carry on the war, what disposition was being made of the accumulating surplus? The Klondike were however, this money in the United States where they were exempted from paying taxes promptly to the Government of that country. The annual report of the Klondike Company for 1916, published early in 1917, states that "on November 21, 1916, the Klondike Company purchased a majority interest in the Klondike Company of Ticonderoga, New York, who have been our largest customers for many years. The product of the Ticonderoga Company is high-grade book paper, for the year 1917, has been sold at prices very much in excess of those obtained during 1916. From a perusal of the Ticonderoga balance sheet, a copy of which is printed herewith, your Directors feel sure that you will be satisfied with the value of the properties purchased."

Ticonderoga flourished. In the year 1917 the American company, of which the Klondike had become the principal owners, said 25 per cent on its common stock and earned altogether $1,215,456 on assets valued in the balance sheet at about three and a quarter million dollars. That was but a beginning. By the year 1917 the Klondike Company—which had in the meanwhile been able to plunge into the Klondike adventure instead of paying its taxes to the Government of Canada—was in a position to announce through its brokers that "during the year 1917 Ticonderoga paid a total of $445,000 in dividends on a total of $445,000 of common stock, of which the Klondike Company's share was sufficient to pay nearly one and one-half times the interest on all outstanding Klondike bonds, including the new issue."

Now can such a report showing as it does the colossal profits then being earned in the pulp and paper trade, be reconciled with the company's failure to pay its rapidly-mounting tax account? How could Henry Drayton—or his predecessor, Mr. Thomas White—have failed so utterly in his duty as to permit the Klondike to go scot-free of National taxes while these vast sums were being paid out in dividends?

We have shown that the Klondike Company was abundantly able to pay its taxes in the years 1916, 1917 and 1918, but that instead of doing so, its funds were diverted to the purchase of American company yielding prodigious profits. It was then that the Klondike lost their heads, saw a great fortune within their grasp and plunged into the Klondike adventure to take the crisis of the war, when the little taxpayers of the country were being urged to do everything they could to finance the nation regardless of profits. In The Mail and Empire, of which Charles Klondike is still President, Carl Klondike Vice-President, and J. S. Douglas another Director of the Klondike Company, is General Manager, there appeared editorially on March 13, 1918, when the Germans had almost broken through the Western front, the words:

Every Canadian with soul so dead as to go on in his pleasure-seeking and money-making, if there were no war ought to be branded as a traitor. Every such Canadian ought to be brought to be delivered from his own wickedness and to be touched by the spirit of loyalty and by the heroism of his country's defenders. Charles Klondike and Carl Klondike whose names appeared at the top of the column in which these appalling and shameful remarks were printed, they did not pay. The Klondike Company's contribution to the winning of the war financially was as much as paper an L.O.V. which it is charged has remained uncollected from that day to this.

Gold in Chicken's Crop.

Strawberry Creek is in the limelight again; and along the same line as on a former occasion.

Mr. Rafferty, a resident of the Big City, bought a fowl from a country producer last week and thereby stumbled upon the makings of a possible fortune—for there was gold in that chicken's crop, and the gold was quality stuff that suggested more. The source from which the fowl came was known to the buyer, and he at once began to look up the maps, with the result that it was found that Strawberry Creek, just across the river south of Stony, was the place where the chicken formerly had its home. Rumor has it that there is lots more gold sprinkled along the bed of the creek, and the prospect is to be followed up. The nugget found in the chicken's crop is about the size of a split pea, and represents a value of 50 cents.

A big stir was made when gold was discovered there a year ago and claims were supposed to have been staked out, but the interest waned somewhat when the real cold weather came.

On the news being brought to Stony on Monday last, a well-known chicken buyer formerly of B.C. but more recently in the overcoat business, immediately loaded his Lizzie with chicken crates and started for the scene.

Entirely New Treatment For Bronchitis, Catarrh.

No Internal Medicine to Take

Years ago the profession fought Catarrh by internal dosing. This upset the stomach and didn't remove the trouble. The new treatment consists of breathing the healing, soothing essence of Catarrhose, which goes instantly to the source and the trouble. Catarrhose is successful, because it penetrates where liquid medicines can't go. The balsamic vapor of Catarrhose drives out the germs, soothes the irritation, relieves the cough, makes Catarrhal troubles disappear quickly. For bad throat, coughs, bronchitis, Catarrhose is a wonder. Two months treatment one dollar. Small size 50c. Sold everywhere or The Catarrhose Co., Montreal.

Suddenly there was another stir about the door, and a young fellow in scarlet tunic and yellow-striped riding pants walked briskly in. His little figure, his clean boyish face, his military alertness, were in striking contrast to the smiling, carefully-dressed crowd. He had taken in the situation at a glance and walked, neither faster nor slower, direct to the desperado. The latter found himself confronted by an unexpected dilemma. If he took his gun off the lumber-jack to cover the policeman he knew perfectly well that the promised slat-tracking process would begin immediately. If the policeman had only stood at the door and ordered him to put up his guns, or perhaps, or thought of his skin as a policeman should, he would have had time to plan his campaign. But this boy in scarlet was a revelation of something new in policemen. It was only eight steps from the door to where the low stool, and those eight steps at parade pace occupied about three seconds. The gentleman from Montana was quick enough with his gun, but he never faced a situation quite like this before. What was this policeman going to do? Would he never stop and deliver his ultimatum? He had not even drawn his gun!

By this time the policeman was beside him. He did not seize him, nor shout at him, nor menace him in any way, yet somewhere in his manner and bearing was a sense of irresistible power.

"Perhaps you don't know that it's against the law to flourish a revolver in this country," he said. "Better let me keep it for you until you are leaving town."

"Against the law?" said the ruffian, now recovering himself. "That's a

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who has suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this letter.
Mrs. A. A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicines I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made me a entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for over five hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

good ones. Why, ever 'thin' I've done for twenty years has been against the law. I cracked up the law for chicken-pick years ago.

"Not the Canadian law," said the Mounted Policeman. "You're only of fense against it once, and it would be the law that gets cracked."

"That's not," cried the other. "Then what has happened?"

"I'll arrest you."

"You can't! I could eat you in three bites. How many like me do you think you got for twenty years? The policeman, with imperturbable composure.

The man from Montana had removed his eye from the lumber-jack, who was now dancing about in menacing attitudes.

"Forget it, Pete," ordered the policeman. "Now how many like me can you lick?"

"About six," said the other, speaking with much deliberation.

"All right," said Sergeant Carey. "Then my chief would send seven. Now will you come with me or wait for the seven to get last night?"

"The look-up is a sort of beastly place to stow a man, especially when he's visiting the country for the first time. I think I'll let you sleep here, on your promise to appear at court at ten to-morrow morning. Let me help you to your room. But first, I'll have to trouble you for your gun."

"What if I clear out through the night?"

"You won't not very far." There was metallic ring in the last words that penetrated the shell of the man who had made a business of breaking law for twenty years, and he calmly handed over his revolver.

"Search me if I know why I do it," he could not digest the last words that he could get that kid in three bites."

"Yes," said the man behind. "But you could digest the whole of it."

"Empire, and that's what you've got to do if you start nibbling on any part of it. Besides, he might not make as easy chaw as you think. You'd find him more bristly than brinon when you get your teeth into him."

"I've seen him throw an handcuff a bigger man than you right in the face, and never turn a hair in his grin."

"An' take it from me, stranger, he says a word or two, and then he's the job's too big for six is gospel, and the quicker you get that in your book the safer you will be in Canada."

Sharp at ten the next morning the man who made a business of breaking law appeared before the magistrate, and said a fine of fifty dollars, and surrendered his weapon to the King's officers for good. When he returned to the hotel and demanded his bill for the night's lodging he was surprised to learn he had none.

"Sergeant Grey settled for you," said the clerk with a faint smile. "Said you were his guest last night."

It was the first time in a long experience that he had found that could be rigorous and yet absolutely right. It upset his whole crude philosophy of his relation to society and the State, and stretched before him the straight and easy road to citizenship.

To return to the scene of the night before. When the bar room had settled down to normal, and no one showed any disposition to do any general baying, Riles betook himself to his room. He had just got into bed when a knock came at the door.

"Who's there?" he demanded.

"Gen'tman to see Mr. Riles," said the porter.

"Well, shoot 'im in. The door ain't locked," said Riles, in considerable wonderment as to who his visitor might be.

The door opened, and a well-dressed man of average height, with carefully combed hair and clean-shaven face, save for a light moustache, stood before him. The uncertain glow of the match with which Riles was endeavoring to find his lamp. His visitor was a man of twenty-eight or thirty years, with clear eyes and well-cut face, and yet with some subtle quality of his expression that implied that under his fair exterior lay a deep cunning, and that he was a man not to be trusted in matters where his own interests might be at stake.

"Hello, Hiram," he said quietly. "You didn't figure on seeing me here, did you?"

"At first glance Riles did not recognize him, and he raised the oil lamp to turn the light better on the stranger's face."

"Well, if it ain't Gardiner!" he exclaimed. "Where in Sam Hill did you come from?"

"It's a big country, Hiram," he said with a touch of bitterness, "but not big enough for a fellow to lose himself in." He sat down on the side of the bed and lit a cigar, tendering another to Riles, and the two men puffed in silence for a few minutes.

"Yes, I've hit a lot of trail since I saw you last," he continued, "and when you're in the shadow of the Rockies you're a long piece from Mainville. How's the old burg?"

"About the same," said Riles. "You don't seem to be wanting no love to it."

"Nothing to speak of," said the other, slowly sticking the ash from his cigar.

"Not to speak of. You know I got a raw deal here, Hiram, and it ain't likely I'd get enthusiastic over it."

"Well, when a fellow gets up against the law an' has 't clear out," said Riles, with great candor, "that's his funeral. As for me, I ain't got nothin' agen Plainville. You made a little money for yourself, didn't you?"

The younger man leaned back and slowly puffed circles of fragrant smoke at the ceiling, while Riles surveyed him from the head of the bed. He had been a business man in Plainville, but had become involved in a

"Tell me," said Riles, "what comes of wearing a tall hat?"

Wisdom Of Limiting Land Armament Is Considered Doubtful

Washington.—When the arms delegates quit work for the Thanksgiving Day recess the following three considerations embraced the central points of interest in their discussion:

Whether the effort to apply generally accepted principles to specific cases in the Far East would bring definite accomplishments or only lead to futile debate.

Whether, in view of the position of France and the general situation in Europe, any serious attempt should be made to agree on a limitation of land armament.

Whether a way can be found to hasten consideration of details on the naval limitation plan, which is proceeding smoothly, but too slowly to satisfy some of the delegates.

Of these questions the first was brought sharply to the fore by several direct clashes of opinion regarding elements of the Far Eastern negotiations. At the executive session of the nine delegations, the right of the Chinese delegates to speak for the Chinese delegates was reported to have been questioned by France, and later a British interpretation of the general principles already adopted was challenged by some of the Chinese.

Earlier in the day the land armament problem had been debated behind closed doors by the delegates of the big five powers, without further result than the appointment of a sub-committee to consider collateral subjects like the use of airplanes and poison gases.

Premier Briand, of France, making his farewell speech to the conference, pressed his argument that his country dared not disarm unless he had guarantees from the other powers, and although the general discussion drew renewed expressions of sympathy from every other national group, no one proposed any formal joint declaration of policy.

Choose Leader For Himalaya Expedition

Brig-General Bruce Will Head Mt. Everest Expedition

London.—Colonel Sir Francis E. Younghusband, president of the Royal Geographical Society, announced that Brig-General Charles Bruce, who is well acquainted with the region, has accepted the leadership for next year of the expedition which will attempt to reach the summit of Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, the highest peak in the world.

Big B.C. Fish Catch

Prince Rupert, B.C.—More than two million pounds of deep sea fish have been caught in these waters since November 1, promising one of the best months in many years. Catches of black cod have been unusually heavy.

Club Thrown At Prince In Bombay

Vancouver.—A special cable to the Vancouver World says that while the Prince of Wales was entering a building in Bombay a club was thrown at his head by some one in the crowd of spectators. The missile missed its mark and the Prince passed into the building unharmed. A great crowd had assembled to witness the visit of the arrival for the ball, which was being given in connection with the Prince's visit to Bombay. The assailant escaped, so far as cables indicate, in the confusion which followed the attack.

Winter Work Will Avoid Delay

Year Would Be Saved On Big Irrigation Project

Calgary.—Representations will be made immediately to the department of the interior, Ottawa, by the Calgary Board of Trade in support of a resolution presented by the Hanna Board of Trade, urging that survey parties be continued through the winter months in the North Saskatchewan irrigation area, now known as the William Pearce irrigation scheme.

This action was decided upon by the council of the local Board of Trade after having the project outlined to them by William Pearce.

It was represented that should the survey parties continue working throughout the winter months, the necessary data required to estimate the approximate cost of the scheme would be available next spring, which would avoid a possible delay in operations of perhaps a year.

From investigations already made, it would appear to be practically certain that Sullivan Lake can be made an immense reservoir, requiring considerable dyking on the east side to render it so.

An Oil Without Alcohol.—Some oils and many medicines have alcohol as a prominent ingredient. A judicious mixing of six essential oils compose Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and there is no alcohol in it, so that its effects are lasting.

Appeal Dismissed

Toronto.—Justice McNeil has dismissed without costs the action brought by Lieut.-Col. Lorne Mulloy to continue as in commission the town of Trois-Rivières from considering taxes on the basis of an assessment roll which doubled the assessments made by a former assessor.

Moplahs Killed In Recent Fighting

Much to Be Done Before Rebellion Is Quelled

London.—Although the official report of the operations against the Moplahs in Southern India declares that considerable progress is being made in dealing with the rebellion, it is evident that the process of clearing up still involves severe fighting from the announcement that 233 Moplahs were killed and 54 captured, and on the British side one Gurkha officer and one British officer were killed in the drive north of the Bepore River. A large concentration of Moplahs under all the best known leaders, is reported as taking place at Bear Chembraes, and the British authorities think it would probably be most satisfactory, from a military viewpoint, if this force could be induced to give battle.

China's Financial Crisis Averted

Three Months' Pay Received For Police and Soldiers

Peking.—The financial crisis which threatened the stability of the government has been averted temporarily through remittances from the provincial military governors, totalling 7,000,000 taels. Such heavy remittances from the provinces are unprecedented. The provincial funds are sufficient to pay the police and soldiers three months' wages, thereby averting the threatened looting of the capital, but will not provide for the civil administration. High civil officials are supporting the government banks by transferring their personal funds to Peking, and as a result notes are again negotiable.

Big Profit On Liquor Sales

B.C. Government Nets $541,606 In Three and Half Months

Victoria, B.C.—The British Columbia Government made a net profit of $541,606 on liquor sales for the first three and one-half months of operation under the Liquor Sales Board from June 15 to September 30, according to a balance sheet filed in the Legislature by Hon. J. W. de B. Parris, attorney-general, in accordance with the terms of the Liquor Control Act. This does not include the $121,000 received from the sale of permits.

Not Conference Result

London.—The partial suspension in the recruiting of seamen for the navy has no connection with the Washington Conference, but is due to the fact that the admiralty, for a long time, has been scrapping obsolete vessels and generally grading the personnel of the navy in pursuance of its policy of retrenchment.

Double Premium

London.—The Board of Trade announces that the German Government has doubled the premium levied when gold duties under the customs tariff are paid in paper currency. Thus four thousand paper marks must be paid for each hundred marks in gold instead of two thousand marks as previously.

Puts Responsibility On Alberta Doctors

Have Been Given Choice Regarding Liquor Prescriptions

Calgary.—Physicians and surgeons of Alberta have had it put squarely upon them by J. D. Brownlee, attorney-general, as to just how many liquor prescriptions each one shall write during a month. By giving the doctors the choice of writing anywhere from a minimum of 25 to a maximum of 100 prescriptions a month, the responsibility for prescribing liquor other than for medicinal uses is put squarely on the shoulders of the individual doctor. There was some talk that the attorney-general's department was preparing to cut down the number of liquor prescriptions to 25 a month. Instead, the department chose the course of leaving it to the doctors themselves.

Wants to Restrict State Parliament

Australian Premier Introduces Bill to Extend Federal Power

London.—A Reuter cable from Melbourne says that Premier Hughes introduced in the House of Lords a federal convention bill designed to amend the constitution of the commonwealth to give greater powers to the Federal Parliament and lessen powers to the state legislature. The bill provides for the election of 111 members, comprising 18 elected by the Federal Parliament, 18 by the state parliaments and 75 by the adult franchise of the commonwealth. Within a year after the first meeting, the convention must report on constitutional amendments desirable and within 15 days the necessary legislation will be introduced.

Dog Returns Purse And Holds Thief

Montreal Man Sent Hound to Assist Woman

Montreal.—The sagacity of a Belgian police dog, belonging to Joseph Cote, led to the arrest of Arthur Leblanc, who snatched a purse from Mrs. MacFarland as she was walking home. Hearing the woman's cries, Mr. Cote, who was passing in his auto, accompanied by his dog, sent the animal after the thief, who took refuge behind some bushes. The astute hound first seized the stolen purse and dashed back with it to his master. He then ran back and, cornering Leblanc, held him until the arrival of a police officer.

An umbrella, which will meet that need, is described with illustration in the December Popular Mechanics Magazine. The top is of heavy oiled paper, which sheds water effectively, and the handle is of cheap wood. It costs far less than the pressing of a wet and wrinkled suit.

Canada was eulogized as a worker's paradise by Major Mary Booth, General Bramwell Booth's second daughter, who has returned to England from a visit to the Dominion. "Canada does strike one as a place to live in," she said in an interview. "All the houses seem to have telephones and electrical washing machines controlled by pressing a button. A Trip Back Home Via the National National

At this time of the year, with the Christmas holiday season drawing near, the question of a winter holiday trip back home to see the "old folks" is uppermost in the minds of many Western people.

With this in view, the Canadian National Railways have arranged for considerably reduced fares from stations in Western Canada—Winnipeg, West in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The special fares may be taken advantage of any time between December 1st, 1921, and January 15th, 1922, and are good for return during three months from date of issue. Tickets may be purchased to any point in Eastern Canada. See any Canadian National Railway Agent for further particulars.

Miller's Worm Powders are a prompt relief from the attacks of worms in children. They are powerful in their action and, while leaving nothing to be desired as a worm expellant, have an invigorating effect upon the youthful system, remedying fever, biliousness, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and other ailments that follow disorders caused by worms in the stomach and bowels.

A Pretty Frock for the Small Girl

By Marie Belmont

Voile is an admirable fabric for the small girl's dress, as it is easily laundered and wears very well. A pleasing shade of tan voile is favored for the fashioning of this frock. It is designed with a square cut neck line, which is outlined with brown gros-grain satin ribbon. The ribbons are continued down the front and also trim the side slashes. They are used to simulate cuffs on the short sleeves, while the skirt shows an interesting ribbon trimming. Of course you might substitute bands of brown voile instead of the ribbon, and this would be equally effective.

The Terror of Asthma comes like a thief in the night with its dreadful throttling, robbing its victim of breath. It seems beyond the power of human aid to relieve until one trial is made of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Then relief comes promptly. Life becomes worth living, and, if the remedy be used persistently, the disease is put to rout. Take no substitute.

THIS WOMAN'S MISERY

Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remarkable Recovery of Mrs. Church.

Smiths Falls, Ont.—"I suffered with falling of my organs, pains around my heart and in bowels and down my legs, neuralgia in my face and head, and that terrible sinking feeling. I felt that I could not live and would fix my house in order every night so there would be no trouble if I dropped off in the night. My husband went to the drug store to get the best remedy he had and he gave him Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and felt a lot better. I will always recommend the Vegetable Compound, and you can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. O. Church, Box 845, Smiths Falls, Ont.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills. If there are any complications about which you need advice write in confidence to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.
